DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION PARTICIPATES IN KENTUCKY STATE FAIR

(FRANKFORT, Ky.) – Kentuckians attending the 2016 Kentucky State Fair in Louisville Aug. 18-28 are invited to visit the Kentucky Department of Education (KDE) booth in the Main Street Kentucky section of the South Wing of the Kentucky Exposition Center in Louisville.

KDE will feature different subject content theme days including mathematics, science, arts & humanities, social studies, global competency/world languages, library media, early childhood learners, and English/language arts, along with days spotlighting the Kentucky School for the Deaf in Danville and the Kentucky School for the Blind in Louisville. KDE staff will engage visitors and answer questions about the content area featured that day.

The schedule of theme days follows:

- Friday, August 19: Global Competency/World Languages
- Saturday, August 20: Mathematics
- Sunday, August 21: Arts & Humanities
- Monday, August 22: Science
- Tuesday, August 23: Kentucky School for the Deaf
- Wednesday, August 24: English/language arts
- Thursday, August 25: Early Childhood
- Friday, August 26: Kentucky School for the Blind
- Saturday, August 27: Library Media
- Sunday, August 28: Social Studies

The KDE Office of Career and Technical Education also will be on hand each day with staff available to answer questions related to career and technical education.

Buster the School Bus also will make several appearances throughout the course of the fair to teach young children about school bus safety.

Visitors to KDE's booth can pick up a free pen, small box of crayons or bag, and take photos using props for different career pathways that they can post to social media using the #KDEKySF hashtag.
